INTRODUCTION

1.1 Background of the Activity

The Field Work Practice (Praktik Kerja Lapangan or PKL) is an educational program that allows students to apply the theoretical knowledge they have acquired in school or university to real-world professional settings. The primary aim of this program is to develop students' skills and knowledge in a particular field by involving them directly in professional activities within industrial or community environments. During the internship period, students are required to prepare a report detailing their performance and accomplishments. This internship program is expected to enhance the capabilities of students at Politeknik Negeri Jakarta (PNJ), equipping them to meet the human resource demands of industry and business sectors. The legal foundations for the implementation of this program include Law Number 12 of 2012 on Higher Education, Minister of Education and Culture Regulation Number 49 of 2014 on National Standards of Higher Education, Minister of Education and Culture Regulation Number 3 of 2020 on National Standards of Higher Education, the Statute of Politeknik Negeri Jakarta, the Academic Regulations of Politeknik Negeri Jakarta, and the Internship Program Implementation Guidelines of Politeknik Negeri Jakarta.

Providing more advanced translation software or support tools could accelerate the workflow. Additionally, developing a system that allows easier access to relevant translation resources would be highly beneficial.
- b. Enhancing Translation Resources:
  - It is recommended to expand and enrich the existing glossary and to build a more comprehensive terminology database. A more detailed and well-organized glossary would be helpful when translating documents containing technical or specialized terms, thereby improving translation consistency and overall quality.

Strengthening Communication with Supervisors: c.

Improving communication channels between supervisors and interns could offer significant benefits. Holding regular and structured feedback sessions would allow interns to receive clear guidance and make improvements effectively. This would also help interns feel more engaged and supported in completing their assigned tasks.

By implementing these recommendations, Human Initiative can improve the efficiency and quality of the translation process and provide a more rewarding and comprehensive internship experience for future participants.

Additionally, for future interns, the writer recommends maximizing learning opportunities and expanding professional networks. These activities may include actively participating in projects or teams, seeking regular feedback, and learning from experienced professionals within the organization. Building strong relationships with colleagues will help widen professional connections and deepen experience. Interns are encouraged to take full advantage of this opportunity to learn more about the humanitarian sector and how non-profit organizations like Human Initiative operate in real-world contexts.

Introduction

The Missing Ingredient

A couple of years ago, I read a startling finding from the Stanford Social Innovation Review<sup>1</sup>, "Since 1970, 46,000 for-profits have crossed the $50 million annual revenue barrier, as opposed to only 144 nonprofits. That's shocking. The most effective and economical way to solve big problems is not 10,000 organizations serving 100 people per year, but rather 100 operationally and programmatically excellent organizations each serving 10,000."

If that's not sobering, I don't know what is in the nonprofit sector.

I think we may have many well-meaning people thinking that they're going to start a nonprofit, of which there are approximately 1.5 million in the United States. Then, they focus on two things: 1) programs; and, 2) trying to stay afloat with limited resources.

In the mix, there's a critical missing ingredient.

I've been working in social good since the 2004 Indian Ocean tsunami, and the missing part is community and volunteer engagement. Your community and volunteers become your donors and if you're missing that

I'm not saying that your nonprofit has to have a volunteer program. Many do alright without it. What I am saying is that you have to have a robust program to engage the community and volunteers, which includes board members and others who give their time (and money) to your organization.

If you work, donate or give your time to a nonprofit, school or church group, or civic organization, this guidebook is meant to serve as a tool for information about how to develop or strengthen your community and volunteer engagement. You'll learn what you need to know to maximize your results so you can end up with people around you who not only support your organization but also go out into the community and are prepared to advocate for you.

By following even some of the ideas provided in this guidebook, you'll have the opportunity to engage with your community in a more meaningful way, which will increase your level of support and ultimately impact your bottom line.

I've always believed that nonprofits have to go from surviving to thriving. Developing and focusing on a robust engagement program for the community and volunteers is a path that will deliver meaningful results to your organization.

Pendahuluan

Beberapa tahun yang lalu, saya membaca temuan yang mengejutkan dari Stanford Social Innovation Review1, "Sejak tahun 1970, 46.000 perusahaan berorientasi laba telah melewati batas pendapatan tahunan $50 juta, dibandingkan hanya 144 lembaga nirlaba. Itu mengejutkan. Cara yang paling efektif dan ekonomis untuk menyelesaikan masalah besar bukanlah dengan 10.000 organisasi melayani 100 orang per tahun, melainkan dengan 100 organisasi yang secara operasional dan programatik sangat baik, masing-masing melayani 10.000 orang.'

Jika itu serius, saya tidak tahu apa lagi yang ada di sektor nirlaba.

Saya pikir kita mungkin memiliki banyak orang yang memiliki niat baik berpikir bahwa mereka akan memulai organisasi nirlaba, yang jumlahnya sekitar 1,5 juta di Amerika Serikat. Kemudian, mereka fokus pada dua hal yaitu: 1) program; dan, 2) berusaha bertahan dengan sumber daya terbatas.

Dalam percampuran itu, ada bahan penting yang hilang.

Saya telah bekerja dalam bidang kebaikan sosial sejak tsunami Samudera Hindia 2004, dan bagian yang hilang adalah keterlibatan masyarakat dan relawan. Komunitas dan relawan Anda menjadi para donatur, dan jika Anda kehilangan

Pendahuluan

Elemen itu - para pendukung Anda - Anda tidak akan dapat mengumpulkan dana yang Anda butuhkan untuk menyelenggarakan program berkualitas tinggi yang ingin Anda sediakan.

Saya tidak mengatakan bahwa organisasi nirlaba Anda harus memiliki program relawan. Banyak yang berjalan dengan baik tanpa program relawan. Yang saya maksudkan adalah Anda harus memiliki program yang kuat untuk melibatkan komunitas dan relawan, termasuk anggota dewan dan orang lain yang memberikan waktu (dan uang) untuk organisasi Anda.

Jika Anda bekerja, menyumbang, atau memberikan waktu Anda kepada organisasi nirlaba, sekolah, gereja, atau organisasi sipil, buku panduan ini dimaksudkan sebagai alat informasi tentang cara mengembangkan atau memperkuat keterlibatan komunitas dan relawan Anda. Anda akan belajar apa yang perlu Anda ketahui untuk memaksimalkan hasil Anda sehingga Anda dapat memiliki orang di sekitar Anda yang tidak hanya mendukung organisasi Anda tetapi juga keluar ke masyarakat dan bersedia untuk membela Anda.

Dengan mengikuti beberapa ide yang disediakan dalam panduan ini, Anda akan memiliki kesempatan untuk melibatkan komunitas Anda dengan cara yang lebih bermakna, yang akan meningkatkan tingkat dukungan Anda dan pada akhirnya berdampak pada hasil akhir Anda.

Saya selalu percaya bahwa organisasi nirlaba harus beralih dari bertahan menjadi berkembang. Mengembangkan dan fokus pada program keterlibatan yang kuat untuk komunitas dan relawan adalah suatu jalan yang akan memberikan hasil yang berarti bagi organisasi Anda.
