CHAPTER I INTRODUCTION

1.1 Activity Background

Internship (PKL) provides an opportunity for students to improve their knowledge and skills and gain practical experience in the world of work. Through this PKL, students can apply the knowledge they have learned during college to the context of the business world or industry. This program is important because it bridges education in higher education with the needs of the business world or industry, so that students can get a better understanding of the reality in the field.

In line with this, the Minister of Education, Culture, Research and Technology of the Republic of Indonesia, Nadiem Makarim, has issued a policy to improve students' readiness to start a career in business or industry, namely Kampus Merdeka-part of the Merdeka Belajar policy. This policy is regulated in Article 18 of Permendikbud Number 3 of 2020 concerning National Higher Education Standards, which allows undergraduate or applied undergraduate students to fulfill the learning period and load with two options: following the entire learning process in college according to the provisions, or dividing learning time between study programs in college and learning activities outside the study program. Merdeka Campus provides opportunities for students to participate in various off-campus learning activities, including internships or work practices in industry for one to two semesters.

The author had the opportunity to do Internship (PKL) at Perkumpulan Maritim Muda Nusantara for four months. During the period, the author translated various types of texts, including journalistic and business texts. In this report, the author focuses on the process of translating journalistic texts because the author has special expertise in this field and realizes that journalistic translation is an interesting topic to discuss.

1.2 Scope of Activities

This report is prepared to describe the author's experience during the PKL at Perkumpulan Maritim Muda Nusantara. During the PKL, the author received various translation assignments such as news texts, articles, and business texts, and the author applied all that had been learned and the author's ability to translate on those assignments. However, in this report, the author would like to focus on the process of translating articles in the Maritim Muda Nusantara Media website.

1.3 Time and Place of Implementation

The time and place of the PKL carried out by the author are as follows:

time : February 16, 2024 to June 30, 2024

instances : Perkumpulan Maritim Muda Nusantara

address : Indonesia Blue Economy Center

Campus C STIE Indonesia Jakarta, Jalan Pratekan No. 9A

Kel. Rawamangun, Kec. Pulo Gadung, Jakarta 13220

!.4 Purpose and Usefulness

The purpose and usefulness of this PKL is to:

- increase knowledge and understanding in preparation for entry into the professional world;
- b. It is a place to apply the knowledge and skills that have been obtained from the lecture process;
- c. fulfill the completion of credits according to academic requirements at Politeknik Negeri Jakarta;
- d. get a real picture of the needs of the professional world;
- e. expand relationships and connections from various fields;
- f. gain new experiences and knowledge about the professional world

CHAPTER IV CLOSING

4.1 Conclusion

The fieldwork practice carried out by the author gained valuable experience in applying theoretical knowledge of translation into daily practice. During the fieldwork, the author gained a deeper understanding of the complexity of the translation process, including challenges such as maintaining the original nuances and meanings in the target language. Through this fieldwork, the author also experienced the importance of flexibility and foresight in capturing the cultural and linguistic context of the translated text.

Translation is not only about language proficiency, but also about sensitivity to cultural differences and social conventions that affect the way of communication. The author learned that technical skills in using translation tools are also crucial in supporting the efficiency and quality of the final output. In addition, this practice provides an opportunity to adapt to different types of texts and genres, ranging from journalistic texts to legal texts, all of which require different approaches in the translation process.

Overall, this fieldwork practice has not only enriched the author's understanding of the translation profession, but also provided valuable insights into the challenges and opportunities within it. The author is confident that this experience will serve as a strong foundation in building a professional career in translation, with a commitment to continuously develop skills and knowledge to meet the changing demands of the industry.

4.2 Suggestions

After going through the internship process at Maritim Muda Nusantara, there are several things that the author notes to be suggestions for all parties involved in this internship process. The following points are given as suggestions:

1. Specific Jobdesk

Hak Cipta :

Hak Cipta milik Politeknik Negeri Jakarta

It is important to provide clear and specific job descriptions according to each division. This will help interns focus on carrying out their duties effectively. A detailed job description also needs to be included so that students understand their responsibilities well.

2. Appropriate Mentor Assignment

It is necessary to assign the right mentor according to the field or division that the student is participating in. Competent and experienced mentors in their fields will help students maximize their learning and provide the necessary guidance to complete tasks properly.

3. Idea Development

It is important to encourage student interns to actively participate in providing new ideas for future projects. This will ensure socialization and other activities become more varied and interesting, as well as relevant to the organization's goal of developing professional understanding among the community.

By implementing these suggestions, it is hoped that the fieldwork practice at Maritim Muda Nusantara can provide more meaningful experiences for students, enhance their skills, and prepare them to contribute effectively in future organizational projects.
